Generous GC America Donation helps the National Children's Oral Health Foundation provide oral health services to underserved children

CHARLOTTE, NC, August 25, 2008 – More children are being served by the National Children's Oral Health Foundation \(NCOHF\) thanks to a generous donation of dental products from GC America, Inc.

NCOHF draws on vast national resources to secure and distribute product and financial donations to nonprofit community-based dental centers, stand-alone clinics, universities and mobile programs across the country, to ensure that millions of at-risk children receive critically-needed quality comprehensive oral health services.

"We are extremely grateful for the support of GC America, which recently made a generous donation of valuable dental products," said Fern Ingber, NCOHF president and CEO. "NCOHF Affiliates from California to North Carolina – including the University of California at San Francisco; Howard University; the Medical College of Georgia; Charlotte, North Carolina's Community Health Services and other nonprofit oral health providers – are using these valuable products to serve our nation's most economically disadvantaged children. These products are even serving children in Puerto Rico, through one of NCOHF's newest Affiliates, the University of Puerto Rico!"

"GC America's mission is to provide products that are integral to the practice of 'minimal intervention' dentistry," said Mr. David Allen, GC America's President and COO. "We are proud to support NCOHF's efforts to eliminate children's needless pain and suffering by sharing our products with those who need them most."
